DESCENT OF SIMEON BULL

SIR WILLIAM BULL, M.P.
474 Uxbridge Road,
London, W.

"THE BRITISH ARCHIVIST,"
January 1914

NOTE

For thirty years I have been trying to discover the identity of my great grandfather and spent over £500 on the quest. My father having died when I was fourteen, I was unable to obtain any information from him—and, when once a family is settled in London, it is difficult to know where to look for its origin. The first point is to get out of London. Simeon BULL left what was a considerable fortune for those days, but it was some years before I knew even that his name was Simeon or that he had left a will. When I found his will (which, by the way, did not mention his two elder sons) I discovered that he left legacies to a brother Peter BULL at Lewes and to a sister Sarah KNIGHT of Wivelsfield. The records at Lewes yielded little or no information and the Wivelsfield registers were kept very badly, so for many years my researches took me no further. In fact I had almost given up hope of tracing Simeon's ancestry, for I could make no progress myself, and others in whose hands I placed the problem did not succeed in helping me out of my difficulty. Then I consulted a certain genealogist who grappled with the case in a method of his own. As his method succeeded, it may be of interest to other genealogists to know what he did.

In the first place he surmised quite correctly that I had ransacked all Sussex already for BULLS, and decided to go on quite another tack. The Christian name Simeon is so uncommon, especially in Sussex, that he considered that if he could discover anyone of the name Simeon about the same period in Sussex, irrespective of that Simeon's surname, he might be Simeon BULL's maternal grandfather or uncle. With his theory and a bag full of my notes he set off into Sussex and (by what means I do not know, but with infinite diligence) he was able to telephone me twenty-four hours later from Lewes that he had found a John BUCKMAN, who had left money to a brother Simeon BUCKMAN, and to a sister Sarah BULL! His first discovery was soon followed by others. For instance, a few days later "Lewes" wanted me again on the telephone, and this time I was to learn that Sarah BUCKMAN had married a Joseph BULL at Lindfield in 1749. As we know from Simeon's age at death that he was born in or about 1750, it was clear that the dates fitted. Confirmatory evidence was supplied by the further discovery that Joseph BULL, Sarah his wife, and Simeon BUCKMAN were all buried at Wivelsfield. And so it went on. It all seems easy now, but it was a brilliant piece of deduction from start to finish, and I have never seen or known it equalled in genealogical research. It has convinced me that the modern school of genealogical research certainly knows how to bring scientific methods to its aid. The "certain genealogist" does not wish me to mention his name in print and says that anyone else could have done it; however, he cannot prevent me from telling my friends about his exploit and I am doing so.

The pedigree is set out opposite. It now remains for me to connect with the various other BULLS at Cowfold, Bolney and the surrounding villages. In time I hope to trace the pedigree back to Johannes BULL who was a Churchwarden of Cowfold in 1470 in the reign of Edward IV, or William BOLLE who was rector of Aldryngham near Shoreham in 1404, and to those mentioned in Domesday Book—a fascinating pursuit.

WILLIAM BULL.
